Ryo answered, "I want to visit you, but I can't speak English well." "(1)() You will find important things here," his father said. Ryo said, "Well..... OK, I will visit you this summer."

This was Ryo's first visit to a foreign country. After Ryo arrived in Singapore, (2)(). Many people were working at the company. They were Chinese, *Malaysians, *Australians, and people from many other countries. Ryo sat by his father and was watching him. Ryo was moved because his father was speaking English very well. His father introduced Ryo to the people working there. An Australian came to Ryo and asked, "Hi, Ryo. How old are you?" "I'm fifteen," Ryo answered. The Australian said to him, "Oh, my son, Tom, is just as old as you. We're going to have a party tomorrow. Why don't you join us?"

The next day, Ryo went to the party. Tom's friends were also there. They were all from different countries. Tom was very kind and introduced Ryo to his friends. They asked Ryo about Japan in English. There were questions he couldn't understand, but he answered some questions. Tom's sister, Meg said, "I like soccer very much. What sport do you like?" Ryo said, "I like kendo." "What is kendo?" she asked. Ryo wanted to tell her about it because he is a member of a kendo club, but it was difficult for him to *explain kendo in English. So he said, "I'll show you some pictures." Then, Meg, Tom, and their friends (3)() him and looked at the pictures. They said, "Cool! You are like a samurai!" Ryo looked at their faces and thought they were interested in kendo. Tom asked, "(4)()?" Ryo answered, "I have practiced it for six years." They also asked him about kendo. "When did kendo *originate?" "What's the meaning of the name, kendo?" Ryo couldn't answer these questions and didn't know what to do then.

Ryo stayed with his father for two weeks. At the airport, Ryo said to his father, "Thank you. I enjoyed my stay in Singapore. I wanted to talk about the history of kendo at the party, but I couldn't." His father said, "(5)It is difficult for me, too, but you learned a lot from the experience, right?" Ryo said, "Yes. I found that it was (6)() to study English and know much about Japan." Ryo decided to come back to Singapore and tell his friends in Singapore about kendo and many other Japanese things.
